DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. Claims 151-179 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

The claims include limitations directed to providing first and second portions of a first amount of data synchronous with external clock signal transitions. The specification does not provide any support for such limitations, and it would require undue experimentation by one of ordinary skill in the art to make or use the invention based on the specification as filed. Applicant has pointed to various parts of the specification as allegedly providing a basis for these claims. However, after examining the referenced sections of the specification it is clear that they do not provide any basis for these claims. The sections of the specification and drawings referenced by the applicant show various clocking circuits, I/O circuits, and system configuration, but they do not show the writing or reading of data from the memory device as is claimed.

Double Patenting

2. The examiner has considered the possibility of double patenting in this application. The closest patented claims appear to be those issued in the immediate parent patent to this application, U.S. Pat. No. 6,032,214. However, those claims are directed to issuing read requests to the memory not the write requests claimed in the present application. Because they are directed to this opposite operation it does not appear as though a double patenting situation exists in this case.
